MS:

Caroline Adler is working on getting the copies of More Magazine. I will follow up with her.

As Huma already replied, the Women in World DVD is in train; Monica and I will work on securing a copy of the Cameron luncheon speeches.

As for the archiving project, I am making steady progress on the binders, and am up to April 2010. At this rate, I will be compiling the binders in real time come late June/early July. Lona has been working on updating the schedules on her own. I have offered to help her in the past to no avail, but understand, per Huma, that we are now telling Lona that we have to expand this to a group project. I am confident that we can add this step to my routine for each binder and still stay on track to get caught up to real time by this summer.

Love that idea! And they would be thrilled and honored. More and more and I think about it, the better an idea it seems. Let me work out the staff issue.

Jessica mentioned you guys had discussed cafe milano but I'm not crazy about going to an italian restaurant. I've told them not to keep holding it. Assume you are ok with that.

i didnt know you had a sat conflict. ok lets go with the brutal option. go from brussels to paris and then fly overnight to israel, have a few hours down, meet israelis and pals on friday and then fly home late friday night to get home in the early hours of saturday.

do you need to talk to me or can i launch on exploring?

for paris, they are undecided on what do to but we could drive it a little bit. they are talking about a meeting and a dinner but we could encourage just a meeting and no dinner. also we have the bilat question. if sarkozy asks to see you, we will have to do something with opposition. we can do it all with a brutal few days but you need to be ok with that. unless the players are not around in Israel, in which case its paris and home!

also on salazar for dinner, i invited him last week and he had a conflicting dinner so i instead manifested all the senior americans (gave jakes eat to ann stock). now he apparently doesnt want to go to his dinner so we asked brazilians if ok to to add him to the current list so no one is cut.

talked to Jake about your Israel discussion. Here is what it could look like with a Paris RON. We can also fly on the 19th but it would be brutal flight. this is the easier option. otherwise, we fly after paris meetings, jam everything into Friday in Israel and have to deal with crew rest issues. happy to discuss.

Monica will give you a draft soon. As I mentioned, lots of bilat requests. The ones we added for tomorrow are:

Georgian to discuss euro-atlantic integration.

Romanian to discuss Kosovo, Afghanistan and MD program.

Belgian FM as a quick 1 on 1 meeting (so we exclude Gutman). FM being kept out of PM meeting cause of politics so its mostly check the box meeting.

Also, on Belgian PM, I think we go back and compromise on a plus 1. And your plus 1 can be phil. Best way to handle situation.

we are sticking with the 1pm wheels up unless you are antsy to get out of town. we would need to tell crew asap if you want to change. other thing to mention is the bengalis have been extremely difficult on every issue, including requiring that they screen all luggage. moni has come back saying she wants a dinner tomorrow night and would do it at your hotel at end of night. we are continuing to say no unless you want to give in but if you do, i would recommend you leave china an hour earlier. ambassador/bob blake think its fine to skip dinner but wanted you to know

A few things though I hope you are resting today!

- sent both media memo and speech draft for georgetown to oscar yesterday. - when we had discussed 2+2, you thought it was in dc in january. I just got request from eap for korea/japan trilat in dc in jan/feb. I wonder if you were thinking of that since there is an expectation for that to take place in dc jan/feb. Working on date.

- you asked about Tawakkul karman: melanne last heard that she wanted to set up an ngo and spend time in dc. But we don't have a lot more recent information on her.

If you need any help with gifts or anything at house, happy to help you.

Dear Secretary Clinton,

We have attended the Clinton Global Initiative now for a few years and feel it is an important gathering of some of the finest and most important people thinking about International Aid. We do, however, feel that women's issues have not gotten the attention or the placement that they deserve. We are hoping you might consider helping us "rock the boat" a little bit this year.

I know that the staff at CGI is hoping to do a plenary with you this year on Design and Urbanization and while this may be worthwhile, we are wondering if you would consider joining with us to make a counter proposal for a different plenary that would be much more meaningful.

There is a great deal of energy at CGI about women, but generally this energy is confined to issue areas that are, for want of a better phrase, "safe." What is more, we have found there to be a distinct lack of support for any and all discussion of Women's Rights specifically. It would be amazing if we could bring a plenary to this year's conference with you and Leymah and some other high profile people (Zainab Salbi I am sure would be glad to do it, as would Ashley Judd and/or Ben Affleck, either of whom would be great) to talk about why none of this talk will get us anywhere unless we talk about Women's Rights.

This is just a loose idea, still in formation, but is this something you might be willing to support us in trying?

With Respect,

Abigail Disney

Leymah Gbowee

Sounds like you have had a crazy weekend. I can only imagine how happy margorie was to see you. Europe trip is coming together ok. How do you feel about only having one townterview on this trip? Just in latvia and not move ahead with Finland. In all our back and forth, it hasn't really come together and there has been so much of an emphasis on a womens theme in finland which none of us think makes sense. So I think you can do a good townterview in latvia and just talk about finlands wonderful womens empowerment in your public remarks at press conference. Ok?

What I was saying:

As you will see from latest schedule, Annan has changed things around to start at 11am.

You are starting with the E3 meeting. Hague asked to see you first thing which we are not doing. Figured he could chat with you on way to session.

Annan thinks he has a meeting right before session but jake needs to talk to you about it. We haven't firmed up a time yet.

I think you can go to first session (where you speak 8th), go to the social lunch to eat briefly, do the pullasides with iraqi, turk and qatari, media interviews, go to part of all of second session, do your press avail and leave.

Agreed. Hosting a meeting here makes sense, make sure DC sees your continued association with the issue. But that doesn't preclude an event in either Sweden or Norway, both member countries, both recent financial contributors. For no good reason, I'd vote for Norway since Sweden just hosted the latest gathering, but I think we already have the GHI speech in Oslo.

Hope all is well!

We wanted to send you a quick update on terrific progress for the Secretary's Climate and Clean Air Coalition, including from the first ministerial this week in Stockholm.

In addition to eating lots of lingonberries, we nearly doubled the size of the coalition; got two other countries to pony up cash; and achieved wide buy-in on our initiatives (e.g., Mexico, Norway, and Nigeria are all on board our effort to reduce methane leakage from oil and gas production).

Lots of work ahead, but momentum is on our side!

Thanks,

Dave

Subject: CCAC: Thank You and Next Steps

CCAC Colleagues,

On behalf of our entire USG delegation travelling to Stockholm over the past couple days, I wanted to send along a hearty thanks for everyone's outstanding work on the Climate and Clean Air Coalition! I can't tell you how many thanks we received for our U.S. leadership while in Stockholm – whether it was Todd and Gina leading the high-level assembly, JP skillfully navigating our 12-hour working group meeting, or the broader efforts of our seamless and dedicated USG team.

I thought it might be useful to give everyone a quick snapshot of what happened in Stockholm and to highlight some immediate next steps toward achieving rapid, substantial progress over the coming weeks.

Here are the highlights from Stockholm, which I really don't think could have gone any better:

We almost doubled the size of our coalition from 7 to 13, with the following officially becoming partners: Japan, Norway, Nigeria, Colombia, the EC, and the World Bank.

Five other key countries actively participated as observers – UK, Korea, Denmark, and Finland, and Australia – along with several civil society and private-sector organizations.

We picked up two additional financial contributions – $1.5 M each from Sweden and Norway – bringing our total commitments to around $18 million.

The Coalition decided to move out immediately on five initiatives – all four of ours and one by Mexico on brick kilns. Of special note, we achieved active buy-in from key other players, for example, Nigeria, Norway, and Mexico on our oil and gas initiative.

More generally, I thought there was tremendous camaraderie among those around the table, and a real sense that we could do something important here on our initiatives, but only if we seize this opportunity and run with it!

Copied below are some articles and the UNEP press release with some additional details.

So now that we have such a strong foundation for action, we have to act! On that front, here are some proposed next steps, especially to quickly make progress on our initiatives:

B5

Thanks again for all the terrific work!

Dave

10 nations agree to move against short-lived greenhouse gases

Nathanael Massey, E&E reporter

Published: Wednesday, April 25, 2012

The ranks of the Clean Air Climate Coalition (CACC) expanded yesterday, with four nations, the European Union and the World Bank pledging to aid the group's efforts to curb short-lived climate pollutants like black carbon, methane and hydrofluorocarbons (HFCs).

The coalition, which was first announced by Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton two months ago, was originally composed of six countries: the United States, Canada, Sweden, Mexico, Ghana and Bangladesh. At its first ministry-level meeting, which took place yesterday in Stockholm, Sweden, four more nations -- Japan, Norway, Nigeria and Colombia -- joined the World Bank and European Union in adding their names to the CACC's roster.

The coalition aims to support projects and shape policies that reduce short-term pollutants, which are responsible for about 30 percent of human-caused global warming despite the fact that they typically only remain in the atmosphere for a matter of days.

"These actions should not diminish our effort to curb carbon, but these [short-term pollutants] are a big deal," said Todd Stern, U.S. special envoy for climate change. Citing a recent U.N. Environment Programme report, he said aggressive action to curb these chemicals could reduce global warming by as much as half a degree Celsius by 2050.

Black carbon, also called soot, is a common byproduct of burning organic matter, like wood or peat -- still a common source of heat and cooking energy for much of the developing world. Methane produced from human activities derives from a number of sources, including agriculture, landfills and industrial leakage.

Small sources can be big warmers

HFCs are chemicals used in the manufacture of refrigerators and air conditioners, and while relatively small in terms of atmospheric concentration, are more than 1,000 times more effective than carbon dioxide at trapping heat.

Because the sources of these emissions are widely disparate, the CACC expects to work primarily on a policy level to create a broad base of change around the world, Stern said.

"There are lots of projects going on the ground right now," he added. However, "larger-scale activity would certainly be [the CACC's] preferred medium."

At the same time, delegates at yesterday's meetings gave a green light to a number of initiatives that can curb and are curbing short-term pollutants immediately. They include actions to reduce diesel emissions from heavy-duty vehicles, upgrades to inefficient brick kilns used widely in Mexico and Bangladesh, and accelerating research into alternatives to HFCs.

Along with its new membership, the CACC received a boost in funding from Norway and Sweden, which each pledged around $1.5 million, said Stern. That brings the program's total funding to around $18 million, with another $12 million pledged by the United States and $3 million by Canada.

The World Bank also announced that it could make $12 billion from its portfolio available to support coalition goals.

U.S.-led GHG coalition gains new members

24 Apr 2012 05:29 PM

Four countries, the European Commission (EC) and the World Bank on Tuesday joined a U.S.-led initiative that aims to tackle climate change in the near term by targeting less controversial but potent non-carbon greenhouse gases.

The Climate and Clean Air Coalition, which was launched at February event in Washington DC hosted by U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, concluded its first meeting in Stockholm, Sweden Tuesday, where it launched five initiatives aimed at reducing black carbon (soot), HFCs and methane emissions.

These "short-lived" climate pollutants account for more than 30 percent of the heat-trapping gases that cause global warming, Todd Stern, the U.S. special envoy on climate change, said Tuesday.

Unlike carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) emissions that remain in the atmosphere for a century, "short-lived" pollutants only stay in the atmosphere for several years.

Colombia, Japan, Nigeria, Norway, the EC and the World Bank joined Bangladesh, Canada, Ghana, Mexico, Sweden and the U.S. and the UN Environment Programme in the coalition.

The group hopes to achieve quick wins in the fight against climate change while U.N. negotiations continue to be bogged down by the reluctance of several major countries to agree to mandatory carbon emission cuts under a new global treaty.

International climate talks are unlikely to deliver a global deal to reduce greenhouse gases – including carbon dioxide – before 2020.

RAPID IMPLEMENTATION

At the Stockholm meeting, the participating ministers approved the following initiatives for "rapid implementation," according to UNEP:

- Fast action on cutting diesel emissions from heavy duty vehicles and engines;
- Upgrading old inefficient brick kilns (cook stoves), a major source of black carbon emissions;
- Accelerating the reduction of methane emissions from landfills, which account for 11 percent of global methane emissions;
- Accelerating cuts in methane and other emissions from venting and flaring in the oil and gas industry;
- Accelerating alternatives to HFCs, a powerful greenhouse gas that has been used as a replacement to ozone-depleting CFCs used in refrigerators.

Stern said although several of these activities have earned carbon credits in developing countries under the U.N.'s Clean Development Mechanism (CDM), the ministers did not discuss the future role of carbon finance in their coalition.

"It's not so much a question of providing funding for that," he told reporters on a press call Tuesday.

He said the member countries would contribute some money towards the coalition, but will also seek to cooperate with private sector companies.

NATIONAL POLICY FOCUSED

Stern said while the coalition would fund some project-level activities, its aim is to give countries technical support to stimulate larger scale national programs.

"While there might be some project activity – at least at the outset," Stern said the goal is for the coalition's work to be "policy oriented" not project-oriented.

Connie Hedegaard, European Commissioner for Climate Action, said the initiative should complement, not replace the work being done through the UN climate change convention to cut global greenhouse gas emissions.

"The Commission is willing to consider further support to concrete projects in developing countries to reduce emissions from short-lived climate pollutants," she said.

"Action on these pollutants will not, however, replace the need for continued action by all major economies to reduce CO2 emissions, which needs to be stepped up," she added.

U.S. to work with other governments, overseas companies to curb methane emissions

Jean Chemnick, E&E reporter

Published: Tuesday, April 24, 2012

One week after U.S. EPA moved to reduce methane emissions from U.S. natural gas production, the country's top climate negotiator told reporters that the United States would also seek to help other countries limit their emissions from petroleum development.

U.S. Special Envoy for Climate Change Todd Stern said on a press call this afternoon from Stockholm that the nascent Climate and Clean Air Coalition to Reduce Short-lived Climate Pollutants would expand its mission to help rein in international emissions of methane from oil and gas production.

Stern said the initiative would seek to work with large petroleum companies and governments of countries where they operate to significantly reduce leakage, flaring and venting of methane during production, "a lot of which can be done at a relatively low cost."

EPA released a rule last week that will require U.S. gas companies to use green completion technology to capture emissions from hydraulic fracturing -- including methane -- by 2015. The administration has argued that the cost to industry will be trivial.

Jake Schmidt, international climate policy director for the Natural Resources Defense Council, said that other countries could learn from the United States' experience with oil shale development and adopt green completion technology early on.

"We have some lessons learned for how to do this well," he said, adding that green completion "pays for itself" because it allows developers to sell methane and other emissions for enhanced oil recovery.

The multinational coalition, which was launched in Washington in February, seeks to support national policies and initiatives aimed at reducing non-carbon greenhouse gas emissions that contribute to short-term climate change. Besides limiting methane from energy development and landfills, the coalition will also target black carbon from cookstoves and hydrofluorocarbons (HFCs) used in refrigeration.

HFCs were introduced following an international agreement to limit chlorofluorocarbons, which contributed to ozone depletion. But they had their own climate-related downside.

"Basically, we have to find substitutes for what were once a substitute," Stern said.

Stern added that the coalition would probably not support basic research, though it is in the process of establishing a scientific advisory panel to advise on technical issues. Instead, it will focus on supporting policy efforts in member countries and partnerships with industry.

The coalition is not a large one, and Stern stressed that it did not replace efforts to rein in the carbon dioxide emissions that contribute most to climate change.

Its initial budget of $16.7 million will include a $12 million contribution from the United States. The rest will come from coalition partners including Canada. Other founding members included Bangladesh, Ghana, Mexico and Sweden. They were joined in Stockholm by new members Norway, Nigeria, Colombia, Japan and the European Commission. The World Bank has also agreed to play a role.

New Climate and Clean Air Coalition Expands to 13 Members

New Initiatives Assessed for Fast and Scaled-up Action on Black Carbon, Methane, and HFCs

Stockholm, 24 April 2012—Five transformational initiatives aimed at accelerating and scaling-up action against a range of health, crop and climate-damaging pollutants were given the go-ahead by Ministers meeting in the Swedish capital Stockholm.

The initiatives, which mark the beginning of the implementation phase of the new Climate and Clean Air Coalition, will fast track momentum towards reducing black carbon or ‘soot’, methane and a range of fluorinated gases called HFCs.

Further momentum was catalyzed with the announcements of Colombia, Japan, Nigeria, Norway and the European Commission that they are joining the Coalition along with the World Bank.

It brings to 13 the number of partners who have joined, expanding the initial membership founded by Bangladesh, Canada, Ghana, Mexico, Sweden and the United States and the UN Environment Programme (UNEP).

The Coalition was launched at an event in Washington DC on February 16 hosted by US Secretary State Hillary Clinton.

Five other countries—Australia, Denmark, Finland, the Republic of Korea and the United Kingdom along with delegates from the private sector —also attended as observers at this week’s meeting to learn first-hand the Coalition’s plans.

More than 10 years of scientific research and assessment indicates that substances such as black carbon or 'soot' and methane are triggering wide-ranging health, climate and crop-damaging impacts.

Introducing cost effective and environmentally-friendly alternatives to fluorinated gases known as HFCs are also part of the Coalition's aims as a result of their high potential to impact climate change if widely taken up over the coming years.

Fast action to reduce short lived climate pollutants can have a direct impact on climate change with the potential to reduce warming by up to 0.5 degrees C by 2050 and help keep global temperature increases below 2 degrees C

Reductions of SLCPs would also allow for addressing rapid melting in the Arctic and in mountain regions with glaciers, like the Himalayas.

By around 2030, fast action can potentially prevent millions of premature deaths from for example inhalation of black carbon while avoiding an estimated 30 million tonnes of crop losses.

The Coalition emphasizes that the climate benefits need to be backed by cuts in other greenhouse gases including CO<sub>2</sub> if temperature increases over the 21st century are to be held below 2 degrees C.

However, addressing near term warming from SLCPs may be crucial to avoid the most serious impacts over the coming decades.

The announcement of new national partners was made today at the end of the first Ministerial meeting of the Coalition which has been taking place in parallel with Stockholm+40—a conference marking four decades after the UN Conference on the Human Environment which took place in the Swedish capital in 1972.

The meeting and conference also comes in advance of Rio+20—two decades after the 1992 Earth Summit that set the course for contemporary sustainable development.

Lena Ek, the Swedish Environment Minister, said today: “Sweden is committed to continue working actively with this important coalition. Furthermore we are happy to announce our contribution to the Coalition Trust Fund with 1.4 MSEK for the UNEP Secretariat and 10 MSEK to concrete projects”.

11.4 million Swedish Krona is around $1.7 million.

Assessment and Go-Ahead for Scaled-up Initiatives

The meeting assessed around a dozen initiatives proposed by developed and developing countries for fast and federated action on short lived climate pollutants including many happening already at the national level.

Delegates took forward five to be approved for rapid implementation by Ministers on the final day. Those approved included:-

Fast action on diesel emissions including from heavy duty vehicles and engines

Studies show that reductions are possible by addressing emissions from the freight transportation supply chain, through city action plans, and adoption of a range of measures for reducing sulphur in fuels and vehicle emissions

Upgrading old inefficient brick kilns which are a significant source of black carbon emissions

Mexico has for example [20,000] small and medium-sized brick kilns and the design of many of the [6,000] in Bangladesh hark back to the 1900s.

Accelerating the reduction of methane emissions from landfills

World-wide the waste management sector contributes about 11% of global methane emissions, and the coalition will work with cities to reduce methane emissions from landfills by improving strategic municipal solid waste planning and providing technical assistance.

Speeding up cuts in methane and other emissions from the oil and gas industry

Natural gas venting and leakage from the oil and gas industry accounts for over one fifth of global man-made emissions of methane: Flaring at oil installations generate both methane and black carbon emissions. An estimated one third of leaks and venting can be cut using existing technologies at low cost.

Accelerating alternatives to HFCs

HFCs are being rapidly introduced as replacements to chemicals that can damage the ozone layer—the Earth's protective shield that filters out hazardous ultra violet light. But HFCs are also powerful greenhouse gases.

The Coalition aims to fast track more environmentally-friendly and cost effective alternatives and technologies to avoid HFC growth.

Additional initiatives – including a proposal by Ghana on agricultural/forest open burning and a proposal by Bangladesh on cookstoves – would be further developed over the coming weeks.

Trust Fund Established

To support the Coalition's efforts, a new Trust Fund managed by a UNEP-hosted secretariat was agreed today.

Initial financing pledges for the Coalition now amount to some $16.7 million with significantly more funds expected over the coming 12 months.

Science Advisory Panel

Sound science has underpinned the formation of the Coalition and will guide its work into the future. Ministers today asked three luminaries involved in short lived climate pollutant work to advise them on the formation of a dedicated world-class Science Advisory Panel to provide scientific advice to the Coalition.

The advice will be provided by Drew Shindell of NASA's Goddard Institute for Space Studies, Mario Molina, the distinguished Mexican chemist and 1995 Nobel Prize co-winner and Veerabhadran Ramanathan, chair of the UNEP Atmospheric Brown Cloud project based at the University of California San Diego,

Coalition Web Site Goes Live

The Coalition today also unveiled a dedicated web site to support dissemination of information about the initiative's role and partners <http://www.unep.org/ccac/>

Notes to Editors

Quotes from Other Newly Joining Partners

Colombia

Frank Pearl, the Colombian Minister of the Environment and Sustainable Development, said:” “Colombia has recognized for some time the urgency of acting on these short lived climate pollutants including the impacts of black carbon on public health and the accelerated melting of glaciers the high mountain areas of Latin America”.

“Colombia is among several countries in our region to act on soot particles from vehicles and other contaminating sources as well as emissions that are triggering tropospheric or ground level ozone—another short lived climate pollutants,” he said.

“In joining the Coalition we see not only potential national and global benefits but Colombia plans to act as a regional hub, reaching out to other countries in Latin America in order to generate regional opportunities for sustainable development,” said Mr Pearl.

European Commission

Connie Hedegaard, European Commissioner for Climate Action, said: "The European Commission is very pleased to join this Coalition. This initiative should complement the efforts needed under the UN climate change convention to cut global greenhouse gas emissions to a level that will limit global temperature increase to below 2°C.

“The Commission is willing to consider further support to concrete projects in developing countries to reduce emissions from short-lived climate pollutants. Action on these pollutants will not, however, replace the need for continued action by all major economies to reduce CO2 emissions, which needs to be stepped up,” she added.

Nigeria

Mrs Hadiza Ibrahim Mailafia , Nigerian Minister of the Environment said: "Nigeria is delighted to be a new member of the Coalition. It is estimated that 95,000 women in my country die each year prematurely because of black carbon emissions from source such as inefficient cook stoves--this is a conservative estimate. Meanwhile there are enormous opportunities for reducing methane emissions from sources such as the oil and gas industry and landfills that can benefit Nigeria and its people and the wider regional and global ambitions to combat climate change in a cost effective and economic way".

"We look to encourage more countries within Africa and beyond to join this inspiring initiative so that fast action can be federated everywhere in order to save lives, improve food security and tackle climate change which challenges the future of the poor and the vulnerable exponentially," she added.

Norway

Bård Vegar Solhjell, the Norwegian Minister of the Environment, said: "Norway is delighted to join the Coalition. It unites our country's interest in achieving national sustainability with international responsibilities in the areas of health, food security, climate and development".

"There are many international initiatives addressing these short term pollutants, and Norway is participating in several of them. In this Coalition the United Nations Environment Program participates, both as partner and as Secretariat for the Coalition. This is a very wise decision, which provides credibility and leverage and increases the value of the Coalition's work", he added.

"Finally it echoes to Norway's interest in the Green Economy in the context of sustainable development and poverty eradication—a key issue for the upcoming Rio+20 Summit in June—in which well-targeted policy and financial interventions can catalyze benefits across multiple fronts," said Mr Solhjell.

World Bank

"From multi-billion dollar investments in clean energy each year to climate smart solutions for agriculture and cities, the Bank already targets short-term environmental pollutants in developing countries through our lending, data and evidence based knowledge sharing and technical assistance. But, we can achieve even more by working as a coalition," said Rachel Kyte, World Bank Vice President for Sustainable Development.

"This is the most important decade for action on climate change", Kyte said. "But with a global treaty that will speed the curbing of carbon dioxide many years off, the climate and clean air coalition puts a practical new deal on the table - one that helps slow global warming while reducing the soot and smog that is damaging food crops and health worldwide, undermining growth and development."

Aims of the Coalition

To catalyze the speed and the scale of action on short lived climate pollutants

Enhance existing and develop new national actions to address mitigation gaps

Encourage existing and new regional actions

Reinforce and track existing efforts to reduce these pollutants, promoting opportunities for greater international coordination and developing and improving inventories

Identify barriers to action and seeking to surmount them

Promote best practices or available technologies and showcase successful efforts to address short lived climate pollutants

Improve understanding of and review scientific progress on short lived climate pollutants, their impacts and benefits of mitigation and dissemination of knowledge; and

Mobilize targeted support for those developing countries that require resources to develop their capacity and to implement actions consistent with national strategies to support sustainable development

The Climate and Clean Air Coalition to Reduce Short-Term Climate Pollutants was launched in Washington DC on 17 February 2012.

For dinner, there is Mathis which is walking distance from residence. Its very small and quiet but the food is great. One of the best sole meuniere dishes I've ever had with grilled veggies. Also ralph lauren has a gorgeous outdoor terrace restaurant. Ambience is totally lovely. Its american food so not an ambitious menu but you can sit there for hours. It is a longer walk (think we did it in 25 min). Then there's a random list of french bistros that embassy advance has for you. I've tried a few of them and they are fine.

For kabul, I connected with harry again and he still supports air force theory that this is the best they can do ie the almaty stop. I'm so sorry. And yes that would be plan 7:15ish with Americans, then off to 8am breakfast.

Ok on Syria. Not sure on dinner in Paris but what are the options?

And I'm still unconvinced about flight to Tokyo but accept the Air Force reality. Fine w me to flip meet and greet to before breakfast so long as I have an hour to get ready. So if we get in at 6am and do M&G at 7:15 that should work so long as I get press coverage for it. Will that work?

good news on syria meeting in that they are ok with you not having to go into the scrum of random syrians. hbj agreed to join you for the opposition meeting you are hosting. we will gauge the larger crowd by sending robert or beth and then you can stop by later if its safer. on abbas meeting, we are going to set up bilat in living room style where he is most comfortable. once you break to 1 on 1, you can stay in same room or go to that small room we usually meet in thats close to your bedroom. also if you want to do an early dinner in paris, we have some GREAT options. on re-fuel to tokyo, airforce has crunched all the numbers and they havent been able to come up with a much shorter route. leaving from bagram doesnt change anything. no difference if we fly to manas, almaty, china, india, mongolia. i just hung up with tuli and crew and confirmed with harry. I believe we have 2 ways to help expedite. One is to find the airport that can do the quickest refuel. some place that has facilities like shannon so we are off the ground quicker and i asked them to find out where that is. We will also move the kabul embassy meet and greet to first event. so you land, go to embassy to refresh/pre-brief, do embassy community event, karzai, then straight to airport. between that and the short re-fuel, we should save almost an hour.

Pilots gave us shorter flight time. So if you are wheels up between 8:30 and 8:50pm, you will still get an hour to freshen up and brief before embassy event, then karzai, then airport.

This plan gets you to tokyo approx 2 hours earlier. Closer to midnight than 2am.

So we aren't sure we can do the meet and greet first. Ryan really doesn't want to change it and they had a hard time reaching people to make the change. So may need to keep to original plan.

Ok great! For Israel, we have been talking about bibi and peres who both expect meeting. Then maybe barak, lieberman, mofaz, opposition leader. Dan is also suggesting public outreach. He will take anything, a town hall, interview or even just the avail with bibi.

Also, as might have been predicted, Pals not entirely happy about getting nothing. I think you are already aware of this but to placate them David mentioned possibility of seeing fayyad in jerusalem.

Its a long story.

Ashton was first upset because siem reap was sold to her as a joint ashton/clinton womens event. None of us knew that. she wasn't even on our schedule. She was told that we couldn't appear with her, that she should speak early and you would come later. She then learned that you had downtime before the event and said she wouldn't bother coming in that case. Steven called to tell me how upset she was, told him we had no idea and that you would of course stay for ashtons remarks. Steven said she was so far over the edge, he wasn't sure he could convince her. He then volunteered that she was also disappointed to hear that she wasn't included in EAS. Cambodians assured they would include her as an honorary guest as they have done for others in the past. Have shared this with boys too to see if there's anything we can do.

Steven suggested a bilat in pp instead. I suggested breakfast before EAS. He said they couldn't do 9am cause she like everyone else is going to see PM.

We left it that he would go back on Siem Reap.

Before steven called back, our guys offered a bilat in pp at 9am even though they were on all these email exchanges to hold. So when you emailed me steven had just called to say that they got the hint that not only did we not want her in siem reap, but we were making a bilat in pp impossible by officially offering a time that didn't work.

So, after all the back and forth, siem reap is still off. I assured him we would do a bilat in pp, it wouldn't be at 9am. She has open slots between wed and thurs. We could do thursday breakfast at 8am or we can do late afternoon at 5:45pm. Really up to you.

tonite: foreign minister has insisted on greeting you personally on arrival which means there will be cameras. we requested closed press but we have lost that battle.

tomorrow: Melanne has asked for a photo with Binta Diop who you know and other senegalese women leaders. they are coming to speech anyway so we will organize a photo at the beginning.

molly melching is in town and looking forward to seeing you. if you want to have drinks or dinner with her, there is a nice outdoor restaurant at the hotel you can go to. lew lukens is in touch with her. monica is looped and can take care of it.

you will notice some downtime in the middle of the day, before the meet and greet. i am not sure you need it but its there. we can always try and do meet and greet earlier so then you are just done with the day.

This is where I left things with cdm, jake and pir yesterday. Will let them discuss with you in person. Hopefully our last round of threats will get some success. If we have zero movement this morning esp on things like having your personal bags swept and no more than a few DS in entire motorcade, you ron in Malawi. The hotel is doable but basically an Iowa inn. You could also stay at amb residence. On monday you can fly to Qunu from Malawi on small plane. My guess is its a 3 hour flight. Hopefully by then S Africans will see we are serious and we can land in joburg monday night. If not, we pursue the crazy idea of one huge bus as the limo although I'm skeptical we have success there since SA are providing the limo and driving it. I know you don't want to embarrass mashabane by canceling dialogue events since she's quite powerless herself. Plus once she sees you, she won't let you out of anything. So hoping that our continuing to push them will work and schedule doesn't change. As you remember, we had many of these issues last time. Don arrived same day you did so he didn't have to deal with them. We just yelled and screamed till they gave in. Fingers crossed.

Subject: Next few days

Haven't really had a chance to download on rest of trip and the plans for next but some notes.

- tomorrow is fine, nothing new to report.

- ghana is a standard funeral. Annan has asked to see you so we will work out a meeting with him. Unless you say no.
- canceled the MCC event in Benin. There were pros and cons but the cons outweighed the pros. Its a successful program, just hasn't manifested itself entirely yet and the stand-alone event risked looking like its wasn't a success. Will get you to istanbul at a more reasonable hour too.
- turkey is coming together although more time has been spent planning this day that it took to write anna karenina. Erdogan and gul set. No one (except Frank) saw Gul as a must do, but Gul asked to see you so hard to turn down. Plus he's the Turkish leader coming to UNGA. Davutoglu also set and we are moving forward with the plan to see UNHCR reps and refugees with Davutoglu. We are also moving forward on the activists meeting which won't include SNC or any other opposition groups, just the grassroots level activists. Will also plan for press avail.

Subject: Updates

Sounds like putin might sit next to you at dinner. My guess is that will be the "pull-aside". No one is saying that, just a guess. Mcfaul, everyone aware of this potential change.

You will get draft of tomorrow soon, its ok, tight with the added bilats. I'm sure you remember how rudd and gillard always ask for shots of you walking and talking. So in lieu of a meeting, she wants to do this informally. We are going to do en route to lunch.

Can discuss bilats anytime. I gave you latest unga schedule in anticipation of it coming up on calls and have gotten all the call readouts which seemed to have no surprises but I can talk anytime. Donilons office called this morning about bibi bilat and told them its not locked fyi. Israelis still haven't given us time.

I will be in DC Tuesday and Friday. Maybe thurs as well. I can of course come to house.

For Rorrie, you will have 1 or 2 unga meetings (including small states) on oct 1st. Wjc in philly that night. We are confirming if there's a time in afternoon you are both free.

Jake: got your message, but for some reason I'm having trouble responding with hotmail (maybe the 1990s have truly ended).

I am in a meeting with Ban and Muallem at 9:30. I can't miss that. And I'm chairing a meeting with agency heads on the Sahel at 11. So I don't think I'm available just before or after the small state thing (which I'm not attending).

One option would be 8:30 at the Waldorf -- if S is up and available. I'd have to leave by 9:00 to brief the SG on Syria just before the Muallem meeting. And I'd have to cancel Esther Brimmer, who asked to see me at 8:30! (I don't mind cancelling Esther.). Would 8:30 at the Waldorf work?

Subject: Sen. Reid taken to hospital after Vegas car crash (AP)

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Troopers say Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid has been taken to the hospital after what appears to be a rear-end crash on an interstate through Las Vegas.

Nevada Highway Patrol Office spokesman Jeremie Elliott says he doesn't know Reid's condition after the crash, which happened about 1:10 p.m. Friday on Interstate 15.

The freeway runs parallel to the Las Vegas Strip.

Elliott says six vehicles were involved in the apparent chain-reaction crash, including two Las Vegas police vehicles, two civilian vehicle and two Capitol Police vehicles.

Elliott says four tow trucks were summoned. It's not clear whether anyone else was injured.

Also, kurt and jeff really enthusiastic about you seeing energy minister in adelaide and announcing the energy dialogue. Its fine and easy to do on your way out of hotel to techport but now he's saying he can only do 5 pm. We have walk, museums, lunch, shelleys house and dinner tentatively in play so this would be smack in the middle. Not crazy about that but its doable.

Subject: Dinner in NYC

Hope your travels have been less brutal than they look. I know it has been a while since we spoke of this, but I still think it would be good for you to have an informal setting to talk to some influential new York city writers and opinionators. So, I would propose to host a smallish dinner when your calendar permits in the coming weeks with the following people who I know well enough to trust some level of discretion for an off the record dinner that would allow you to provide an account of some of the highs and even some lows of policy making on Libya , china, Iran, the Arab spring and the Israel Palestinian issue. They are: Eleanor Randolph and carol Giacomo from the New York times editorial board, Richard Cohen of Washington post, David Remnick and Rick Hertzberg from the New Yorker, Leon Wieseltier and

Frank Foer from the New Republic, Tina Brown from Newsweek, my wife from CNN and ABC, and maybe one or two others like Tom Brokaw.

The point is not to create news stories, but to ensure when these people deliver their inevitable assessments of your term as Secretary they have an appreciation of some of the difficulties and complexities.

All best, Jamie

But as discussed, here is the answer to McCain's question about funneling more $ through the SOC

- The SOC is a very new organization -- midwifed by Ambassador Ford only a few short months ago. We've been working closely with it to develop its capacity to help direct humanitarian assistance.

- We're also coming to terms with it on direct assistance for the organization -- supporting staff salaries and overhead, for instance. And we're trying to coordinate with its assistance arm -- the Assistance Support Unit -- on an assistance shipment to Aleppo, in addition to other aid.

- It's a work in progress, but we are in fact making much progress in a short time. The larger problem is that the needs are just overwhelming.

Dear Secretary Clinton,

We have attended the Clinton Global Initiative now for a few years and feel it is an important gathering of some of the finest and most important people thinking about International Aid. We do, however, feel that women's issues have not gotten the attention or the placement that they deserve. We are hoping you might consider helping us "rock the boat" a little bit this year.

I know that the staff at CGI is hoping to do a plenary with you this year on Design and Urbanization and while this may be worthwhile, we are wondering if you would consider joining with us to make a counter proposal for a different plenary that would be much more meaningful.

There is a great deal of energy at CGI about women, but generally this energy is confined to issue areas that are, for want of a better phrase, "safe." What is more, we have found there to be a distinct lack of support for any and all discussion of Women's Rights specifically. It would be amazing if we could bring a plenary to this year's conference with you and Leymah and some other high profile people (Zainab Salbi I am sure would be glad to do it, as would Ashley Judd and/or Ben Affleck, either of whom would be great) to talk about why none of this talk will get us anywhere unless we talk about Women's Rights.

This is just a loose idea, still in formation, but is this something you might be willing to support us in trying?

With Respect,

Abigail Disney

Leymah Gbowee

Hillary- the founder of Groupon started Ideas Week in Chicago and it has been an amazing success for two years now. Last year I did a panel with Mayor Bloomberg. This year they would love for you and I to appear on opening night and talk about the state of the union. Great opportunity on many levels. Would be October 8. I'd love for you to join. Let me know what you think.
